

Melissa Bekelja Wanzer (Ed.D., West Virginia University, 1995) is Professor in the Communication Studies Department at Canisius College where she teaches graduate seminars in interpersonal communication and persuasion and undergraduate courses in health communication, family communication, interpersonal communication, gender and constructive uses of humor. Dr. Wanzer studies the benefits of humor production in instructional, corporate and health care contexts. She serves on three editorial boards and is currently acting as consulting editor for Communication Education. Her research appears in Communication Education, Communication Teacher, Communication Quarterly, Health Communication, Journal of Health Communication and Communication Research Reports. Her co-authored textbook, "Interpersonal Communication: Building Rewarding Relationships," is used by communication instructors at a variety of community colleges and four year colleges and universities. Dr. Wanzer is the 2004 faculty recipient of the Dr. I. Joan Lorch Women Studies award and the 2008 recipient of the Arts and Sciences Scholarship award at Canisius College.